7 Steps to Successful RealCare Baby Deployment (Whether You're Teaching Remotely or In the Classroom)

Each year we host a series of free webinars to help instructors (both new and experienced) have what they need for successful RealCare Baby deployment for the next school year. This year we're celebrating RealCare Baby's 25th birthday, which means that the RealCare Baby deployment tips we're sharing below have been fine-tuned using two decades' worth of RealCare Baby experiences.

Teaching in a remote learning environment this fall? Look for tips throughout the blog to make your RealCare Baby deployment as seamless as in-classroom teaching.

3 RealCare Baby Lessons You Can Facilitate Online

Earlier this year we hosted a free webinar on delivering content from our RealCare Baby curriculum in an e-learning environment. Hosted by longtime Realityworks product manager Denise Bodart, the webinar shared 3 RealCare Baby lessons you can facilitate online.

With many schools returning to blended or entirely virtual learning environments this fall, we know teachers are working hard to provide engaging curriculum in an e-learning environment.

You can access ALL of our RealCare Baby curricula for free here.

Lesson #1: Holding and Feeding (from RealCare Baby's Basic Infant Care curriculum, which focuses on child care career skills)

Part 1: Holding and Handling an Infant

Before your virtual lesson, pose this question to students via email or an LMS system: When and why would a caregiver need to hold or handle an infant? As you collect questions from students, prepare a master list so you can ensure that questions will be addressed in the lesson at some time.

Begin your virtual lesson by explaining how infants are totally dependent on their caregivers to move and be comfortable. Remind them that the infant's only way to communicate hunger or any other needs is to cry.

Then, demonstrate via your own video (using RealCare Baby if you have it) how to properly pick up an infant who is lying on his or her back. As you demonstrate, explain the steps you're taking and why you're following them.

Next, use your video to demonstrate three ways to hold an infant: cradle hold, shoulder hold, and football hold. As you demonstrate, explain the importance of supporting the head, neck and back.

Conclude by asking students why it is so important to support an infant's head and neck. You could send that out as a quick discussion thread or send it via email.
